INTRODUCTION

A young woman runs her fingers over strange diagrams and twisting runes. A clockwork, newly awoken, discovers the magic binding its soul to its mechanical body responds to its will. A halfling in a busy tavern clutches at his head, struggling to drown out the voices in his head that he is almost sure are the thoughts of those sitting around him. A goblin slips through the gap between two stone doors to find a tomb, and seated atop the sarcophagus within is a withered old man, his dry flesh cracking and falling away as he smiles at his newest apprentice. These and countless others represent just some of the ways the people of Urth might take their first step on the path to magical power.

Magic's allure draws people from all ancestries, cultures, and civilizations into its embrace. Magic promises to bend reality, to make possible the impossible, to level the field between weak and strong, making the lowly as powerful as those who rule them. Magic can bend minds, produce fire, shape nature, and do so much more—there is little that magic cannot accomplish, in the right hands. But there is also no limit to the horror that can be worked when it finds its way into the wrong hands.

By itself, magic does nothing. It exists as a field of potential energy enveloping reality, the afterbirth of those creative forces responsible for bringing the universe into existence; to apprehend and shape it into useful forms requires the use of a tool. Such tools could be an enchanted object, a relic, or a strange concoction brewed in a laboratory. Most of its practitioners, however, know magic through spells. A spell acts as a “device” designed to channel a certain amount of magical energy in a patterned way in order to consistently produce a desired effect. The greater one's mastery of magic, the greater the tools he or she can use. To truly realize magic's full potential requires a lifetime of study, practice, and work.

Magicians are those individuals who have committed their lives to learning and mastering magic. This supplement examines this novice path and introduces a host of customization options to make it even more diverse and interesting. At its core, In Pursuit of Power aims to make the first steps taken toward mastering magic more meaningful for a novice character, ensuring the circumstances of revelation help shape his or her identity over the course of play.

This supplement references material from outside the main rulebook. The Demon Lord's Companion reveals the Alchemy, Death, Demonology, Spiritualism, Telekinesis, and Telepathy traditions. The Fey tradition is described in Terrible Beauty. The Demon Lord's Companion 2 covers the Invocation, Metal, Order, and Soul traditions.

Finally, some reference is made to the Madness tradition, which will be fully revealed in Occult Philosophy, along with several new traditions, a great many new spells, and other significant expansions to Shadow.

BECOMING A MAGICIAN

Nearly every being on Urth possesses the potential to wield magic. Its various peoples, however, are the most likely to make use of spells and other magical tools necessary for channeling its energies. Some might discover a knack for magic early in life. A moment of extreme stress might burst open the floodgates, manifesting as weird lights, eerie noises, and impossible happenings surrounding the novice until he or she somehow regains control. Others might learn magic in an academic setting, studying alongside fellow apprentices to commit spells taught by master magicians to memory.

The roads to magical mastery are many, but each requires one to take the first step, to make the necessary discovery that makes it possible to learn spells. A magician's training most often describes how he or she discovers the first tradition. A student in a magical institution might discover Arcana first, while an initiate in a coven begins by discovering Life. Similarly, a pupil under the tutelage of a faerie might discover Enchantment or Fey, while a cultist unearths the secrets of Forbidden magic from some horrific entity. Once they set down the path of discovery, magicians begin to encounter other new traditions as well, as they work to broaden their understanding or focus their learning on their first tradition in order to become masters of it in their own right.

The events, circumstances, and decisions you make during your starting adventure could suggest the magician path when you make your choice at the novice level. You might have uncovered an old grimoire filled with magical secrets, encountered or befriended a faerie who promises to teach you magic in exchange for your help, or stumbled across some strange magical device whose potential you are only just now discovering.

Magicians can play almost any role in a group depending on the traditions they discover. Some fight alongside warriors to defeat their enemies, while others rain fire and death on their foes from afar. Others use magic to heal and bolster their companions. Some become manipulators, tricksters, makers of magical objects—or do, really, anything they wish. No matter what role they fill, magicians can always change course, becoming whatever they need to be.

The Magician Story Development table offers ways to explain how and why you follow the magician path. You can use this table if a lot of game time passes between your starting adventure and the beginning of your novice path. You can also use this table if you're creating a character to join an established group of higher-level characters. Of course, if you prefer, you can always make up your own explanation, using the table results as inspiration.

MAGICIAN CHECKLIST

If you performed any of the following activities, the magician path might be for you.

- ☐ You cast a spell from an incantation.
- ☐ You found or used an enchanted object, potion, or some other item of minor magical power.
- ☐ You found a book detailing the secrets of magic or befriended someone with magical ability.
- ☐ You helped defeat a construct, demon, undead, or some other creature of magic.
- ☐ You took damage or gained an affliction from a spell or magical effect.

TRADITION TALENTS

Magicians derive nearly all their capability from the magic they study and eventually master. The primary benefit of their efforts comes in the form of the spells they learn to cast. For example, some magicians delve into the secrets of fire, learning to evoke flames with a word and gesture, shaping and directing them according to their will. Others bend the minds of their victims with Enchantment magic, turning them into unwitting pawns. A rare few dabble in the dark arts, performing such vile acts as creating undead thralls through Necromancy, weakening the fabric of creation with Forbidden spells, or inflicting curses to utterly ruin the lives of those who offend them. While spells and traditions go a long way toward making magicians distinct, their study, research, and practice also open doors to entirely new avenues of development.

Tradition talents offer magicians another way to reflect growing mastery of the traditions they discover. Each tradition offers a set of five talents related to the nature of its magic. You can choose these talents in place of the standard magician talent as indicated in the tradition's description, provided you have discovered the tradition. If, for example, you have discovered Arcana and Alchemy, you could exchange the Cantrip talent for Alchemy Focus and Arcana Focus.

AIR TALENTS

Air Focus (Cantrip) Learn one rank 0 spell from the Air tradition and gain the Lasting Breath talent.

Lasting Breath As a minor activity, expend the casting of a rank 0 Air spell and fill your lungs with air that remains for 1 hour or until you speak, at which point the effect ends. While holding this air in your lungs, you do not need to breathe.

Command the Wind (Sense Magic) You can use an action to produce any one of the following effects:

- You clear away dust and powder from all surfaces inside a 2-yard cube originating from a point within short range.
- You disperse all odors inside a 5-yard cube originating from a point you can reach.
- You cause one unsecured, lightweight object, such as a piece of paper, to fly $1d6 + 3$ yards in a direction you choose.
- You snuff out one candle flame or lantern flame within short range.
- You disperse mist, vapor, fog, or smoke inside a 1-yard cube originating from a point you can reach.

Refreshing Recovery (Spell Recovery or Improved Spell Recovery) You can use an action to heal damage equal to your healing rate and then fly up to half your Speed. You must land at the end of this movement or fall. Once you use this talent, you must complete a rest before you can use it again.

Protective Winds (Counterspell) Whenever you cast an Air spell, a powerful wind races around you for a number of rounds equal to your Power score. The wind grants you a +2 bonus to Speed and imposes 2 banes on any attack rolls made against you that use thrown or ranged weapons, other than bolts and beams of energy, as well as projectiles from gunpowder weapons.

Improved Refreshing Recovery (Spell Recovery or Improved Spell Recovery) You can use the Refreshing Recovery talent one additional time between rests.

ALCHEMY TALENTS

Alchemy Focus (Cantrip) Learn one rank 0 spell from the Alchemy tradition and gain the Antitoxin talent.

Antitoxin When you would take damage from poison or you would become poisoned, you can expend a casting of a rank 0 Alchemy spell to reduce the damage you would take to 0 or remove the poisoned affliction from yourself.

Alchemical Admixture (Sense Magic) Whenever you complete a rest and you have an alchemist's kit, you brew a number of doses of alchemist's admixture equal to your Power score. The admixtures lose potency when you next complete a rest. You can use an action to combine the admixture with a potion to achieve any one of the following effects:

- If the potion deals damage, it deals $1d3$ extra damage.
- If the potion heals damage, it heals $1d3$ extra damage.
- If the potion's effect lasts 1 minute or longer, you increase its duration by 50%.

Healing Elixirs (Spell Recovery or Improved Spell Recovery) Whenever you complete a rest and you have an alchemist's kit, you brew a number of healing elixirs equal to your Power score. The elixirs retain potency until you next complete a rest. A creature can use an action to drink the elixir or administer it to an unconscious creature it can reach. At the end of the round, the creature who consumed the elixir heals damage equal to half its healing rate.

Chemical Attack (Counterspell) If you have an alchemist's kit, you can use an action and expend a casting of an Alchemy spell you have learned to throw noxious chemicals at a creature or object within short range of you, causing the target to take $1d6$ damage per rank of the spell expended (a rank 0 spell deals $1d3$ damage). A creature can make an Agility challenge roll, taking half the damage on a success.

Improved Healing Elixirs (Spell Recovery or Improved Spell Recovery) If you have the Healing Elixirs talent, your elixirs heal damage equal to the healing rate of the creature that consumed it.

- You remove some or all of your body hair or gain body hair.
- You change your gender.

Altered Physiology (Spell Recovery or Improved Spell Recovery) You can use an action to heal damage equal to your healing rate and then remove one affliction from yourself. Once you use this talent, you must complete a rest before you can use it again.

Reactive Resistance (Counterspell) When you would take damage from a source other than a weapon, you can use a triggered action to make a Will challenge roll. On a success, you take half the damage. If the total of your roll is 0 or less, you cannot use this talent again until you complete a rest.

Improved Altered Physiology (Spell Recovery or Improved Spell Recovery) When you use Altered Physiology, you heal damage equal to twice your healing rate.

ARCANA TALENTS

Arcana Focus (Cantrip) You learn one rank 0 Arcana spell and gain the Simple Spells talent.

Simple Spells When you complete a rest, roll a d6 + 1. The total of your roll is the number of extra castings you have for rank 0 spells you have learned. When you would cast a rank 0 spell, you can expend one of these extra castings instead of expending a regular casting.

Dismiss Magic (Sense Magic)

At any time, you can use a triggered action to end the effect of a spell you cast. In addition, you can use an action to attempt to end an ongoing spell effect that affects a creature, object, or area you can see within medium range. Expend the casting of a spell you have learned and then make an Intellect challenge roll. If the spell whose casting you expended is of a rank lower than the spell you would end, you make the roll with 3 banes. If the spell's rank is higher than that of the effect you would end, you make the roll with 3 boons. On a success, you end the spell.

Close the Gap (Sense Magic) On your turn, during the first round of combat, you can use a triggered action to move up to your Speed toward a creature you can see. This movement does not trigger free attacks. You can use this talent a number of times equal to 1 + your Power score, regaining expended uses when you complete a rest.

Battle Surge (Spell Recovery or Improved Spell Recovery) You can use an action to heal damage equal to your healing rate and then make an attack with a weapon you are wielding. You can substitute Intellect for the attribute you would normally use to make the attack. Once you use this talent, you must complete a rest before you can use it again.

Battle Acumen (Counterspell) When you cast a Battle spell, your combat senses sharpen, helping you see openings where they didn't before exist. For 1 round, you make attack rolls and challenge rolls with 1 boon.

Improved Battle Surge (Spell Recovery or Improved Spell Recovery) You make the attack from Battle Surge with 1 boon and deal 1d6 extra damage.

CELESTIAL TALENTS

Celestial Focus (Cantrip) You learn one rank 0 Celestial spell and gain the Illuminating Strike talent.

Illuminating Strike Whenever you get a success on an attack roll against a creature or object, you can expend the casting of one rank 0 Celestial spell you have learned to cause the target to emit light in a 5-yard radius for 1 round.

Boost Light (Sense Magic) When you cast a Celestial spell that creates an area of light, you double the area's radius.

Radiant Recovery (Spell Recovery or Improved Spell Recovery) You can use an action to heal damage equal to your healing rate and release a pulse of blinding light. Each sighted creature, other than you, within 2 yards of you must get a success on a Perception challenge roll or become blinded for 1 round. Once you use this talent, you must complete a rest before you can use it again.

Blinding Defense (Counterspell) When a creature you can see makes an attack roll against you, you can use a triggered action to expend the casting of a rank 1 or higher Celestial spell. The triggering creature must get a success on a Perception challenge roll or become blinded for 1 minute. If you expended a spell of a rank higher than 1, you impose 2 banes per rank above 1. A creature blinded by this effect can use an action to make a Strength challenge roll to remove the blinded affliction from itself on a success.

Improved Radiant Recovery (Spell Recovery or Improved Spell Recovery) You can use Radiant Recovery one additional time between rests.

CHAOS TALENTS

Chaos Focus (Cantrip) You learn one rank 0 Chaos spell and gain the Controlled Chaos talent.

Impose Chaos (Sense Magic) Whenever an attack roll or challenge roll is made by a creature within short range of you, you can use a triggered action and expend the casting of a rank 0 Chaos spell to force that creature to roll a chaos die (a d6). The target applies an odd number as a penalty and an even number as a bonus to the triggering roll.

Chaotic Recovery (Spell Recovery or Improved Spell Recovery) You can use an action to harness Chaos magic. Make a Will challenge roll and find the result on the following table. Once you use Chaotic Recovery, you must complete a rest before you can use it again.

Total	Effect
0 or less	You gain 1d6 Insanity.
1–4	You gain 1d3 Insanity but heal damage equal to half your healing rate.
5–9	You heal damage equal to half your healing rate.

15–19	You heal damage equal to twice your healing rate and regain the casting of one spell you have learned.
20 or more	You heal all damage, remove 1 Insanity, and regain up to two castings of spells you have learned.

Chaotic Defense (Counterspell) When a creature you can see attacks you with a spell, you can use a triggered action to force the creature to make the attack roll with a chaos die (see Impose Chaos, on page 9) or you to make the challenge roll to resist the spell with a chaos die. If the triggering creature rolls a 1 on the chaos die or you roll a 6 on the chaos die, the spell has no effect on you.

Controlled Chaos Recovery (Spell Recovery or Improved Spell Recovery) When you make the Will challenge roll for Chaotic Recovery, you make the roll with 1 boon.

CONJURATION TALENTS
